WHY CREATE AN OUTREACH PROGRAM?

Outreach can be defined as experiential education, in which students offer services to the community. Reflecting on their involvement helps them to understand the course content, the discipline, its relation to social needs and their civic responsibility. (R. Bringle, J. Hatcher, 1997)¹

-The ongoing collaboration with USC has been an essential part of building and strengthening the Spanish department at USC Hybrid High. Our students and our teachers have benefited greatly from all the opportunities and support they have given, from curriculum support to creating engaging programs for our students. We are very grateful and always excited to work with them. - Andrea Bobadilla, USC Hybrid Spanish Instructor

BENEFITS FOR USC STUDENTS

“Through Feliz en la Comunidad, I was able to strengthen my Spanish and leadership skills, even during the middle of a global pandemic. The program gave me the opportunity to be involved in community outreach, while still abiding by safety procedures from inside my own home. Before participating in the program, I didn't have a lot of confidence in my Spanish speaking abilities. I had taken four years of Spanish class, but I hadn't had the chance to put it into real practice very often. This organization allowed me to gain confidence in my skills by teaching the language to other students, and by utilizing my Spanish knowledge so that I could better retain what I have learned previously, and implement it into real practice.” - Catie Mullin (USC Student Participant in Feliz en la Comunidad)
