A Digital Repository for the World of Physical Culture

Lesley Caldwell
Brent Sipes
H.J. Lutcher Stark Center for Physical Culture and Sports
Who is Ottley Coulter?
Bodybuilding’s first historian
What is the Stark Center?
A “start-up” institution
Why a digital collection?
Why DSpace?

H.J. Lutcher Stark Center for Physical Culture and Sports

Community home page

Collections in this community

- Jowett - Coulter Correspondence Letters [1]
  Correspondence: 1920-1968

- Otley Coulter [1]
  News clipping from the world of Physical Culture.

- Physical Culture, VOLUME 41, 1, [1]
  The first volume of Physical Culture magazine, published in 1899.

The user is cautioned that the publication of any of the contents of this collection may be construed as constituting a violation of literary property rights. These rights derive from the principle of common law, affirmed in the 1976 copyright act, that the writer of an unpublished letter or other manuscript has the sole right to publish the contents thereof for the duration of the copyright. Unless he so affirmatively parts with that right, the right descends to his or her legal heirs regardless of the ownership of the physical manuscript itself. It is the responsibility of an author or his publisher to secure permission of the owner of literary property rights in unpublished writing. This material may be protected by copyright law (Title 17, U.S. Code).
What obstacles?
What successes?
H.J. Lutcher Stark Center Digital Archive | E-STARKive

The Stark Center Digital Archive is home to a diverse collection of items and resources representing only a fraction of our physical collections. The Stark Center Digital Archive is public, open to browse, and most items are downloadable. As we strive to digitize more materials, this archive will continue to grow in service of our mission to support physical culture research and education.

Physical Culture Communities

Select a community to browse its collections.

- Ottley R. Coulter Collection
What’s next?
Come visit us.