TDL Racial Equity Action Plan

Version 2.0

This plan represents an ongoing effort to articulate the concrete measures Texas Digital Library (TDL) commits to take in order to dismantle white supremacy within our organization and associated communities. Our goals are not just to address inequities in our staff organization and the broader consortium, but to help transform practice and culture in the larger higher education and cultural heritage communities in which we operate. The initial version of this plan was published in March 2021 and is updated annually, at minimum, by TDL’s executive leadership and Governing Board.

We believe TDL’s work fundamentally promotes equity and inclusion by providing alternative models for distributing research and cultural heritage materials in ways that are more equitable worldwide. Through our Open Access repositories, journals, and dissertation publishing tools, researchers and institutions can publish their work and make it freely available, outside of established profit-driven systems. As a membership organization, furthermore, we are accountable to our members that fund and govern our operations — a model of governance more suited to creating equity than top-down, profit-driven models.

TDL has previously enacted policies and programs that we believe combat white supremacy, including some of the measures listed in the sections noted as “Policies and operating procedures currently in place.” It is our intent to continue such established procedures even as we assess, strengthen, and add to them. We have shown our willingness to name racism and our own organizational shortcomings. And we recognize that there is much more we can do. We commit to revisiting this plan regularly, with a goal of normalizing anti-racism action as part of ongoing program assessment and planning. Additionally, we will continue to seek input and critique from our communities to strengthen our efforts and propel us forward.
