

Texas Cowboy Churches

A Collection of Oral Histories

Cowboy Churches are local Christ-centered nondenominational churches identified with cowboy or country culture. They have a character that is distinctively relaxed and Western. Since 1999, the Cowboy Church movement expanded and has grown significantly throughout the country.

As a history project, Jake McAdams, a graduate student at SFA, conducted a series of oral histories and interviews with Texas Cowboy Church members who explained their experiences in the church. The Cowboy Church oral histories are presented as part of the Oral History Collection in the Digital Archives at Stephen F. Austin State University Library.
